Aurélien Espic

Research economist – Banque de France
PhD candidate – Aix-Marseille School of Economics
aurelien.espic@banque-france.fr – Website

EXPERIENCE

Research economist – Banque de France
International Studies Division — Since 2025

- Analysis of global capital markets
- Model-based analysis of international shocks

Financial Stability Division — 2022 – 2025

- Risk analysis of non-financial firms
- Model-based calibration of policy instruments

STUDIES

Aix-Marseille School of Economics — Since 2023
On-the-job PhD track
Supervisors: Céline Poilly and Marco Fongoni

University of Oxford — 2022
Visiting student in the department of economics

Paris School of Economics — 2019 – 2021
Analysis and Policy in Economics Master's degree
Supervisor: Éric Monnet

École normale supérieure – PSL — 2018 – 2022
Diploma in economics and social sciences
Admission by competitive examination, fully funded scholarship

RESEARCH

Commercial Real Estate and Credit Misallocation
On-going project, latest version

Capital Requirements in Light of Monetary Tightening*, with Lisa Kerdelhué and Julien Matheron*
Forthcoming in the International Journal of Central Banking; Banque de France working paper 947

Public Debt as Private Liquidity: The Poincaré Experience (1926-1929)
Financial History Review, 30(3), 308-329, 2023; Banque de France working paper 945; SUERF policy brief 928

OTHER PUBLICATIONS

Commercial real estate in the euro area: macroeconomic or idiosyncratic shocks?, Banque de France blog post 392, 2025

Implications of higher inflation and interest rates for macroprudential policy stance, ECB occasional paper 358, 2024

SKILLS

Languages: French (native language), English (C2, Cambridge Advanced Exam)

Programming: R, Matlab, Python